

2008-2009 SCHOOL YEAR: SCHOOLS THAT REQUIRE OR RECOMMEND SAT SUBJECT TESTS (“SAT II” TESTS)

All data provided on this list are current for the 2008-2009 school year. Special circumstances and unusual conditions are indicated wherever known, so please read this list carefully. In all cases, however, be certain to double-check with the school(s) to which you are applying to assure that information on SAT Subject testing is both accurate and up-to-date. Sources of information consulted in the compilation of this list include: The College Handbook 2009, published by The College Board; individual college catalogs and web pages; the Common Data Set of The College Board; and direct contact with individual admission offices

The list is organized by state with colleges and universities listed alphabetically within each section. If no bracketed statement follows the name of the college, SAT Subject Tests are REQUIRED for admission to that school. The number of SAT Subject Tests required for admission follows the name of the school. If specific SAT Subject Tests are prescribed, this is indicated by <characters in carats>—otherwise, students are free to submit any SAT Subject Tests of their choosing. In all other cases—SAT Subject Tests recommended or known special circumstances—specific information is provided if it is known. If there is a particular number of SAT Subject Tests a school recommends, this is noted; if the school in question does not specify a number, the designation is simply “recommended.”

A special note to homeschooled students: your requirements may be somewhat more extensive than those for individuals that attend public or private school. Please be certain to check with each individual college or university regarding SAT Subject Test requirements (or recommendations) for homeschooled students. The same goes for international students as regards differential expectations and requirements (such as TOEFL, ELPT or additional Subject Tests). Please be sure to check with each individual college or university to which you apply!

NOTE: All references to SAT are to the “new” version of the test (March 2005 and later) containing a Writing section; all references to ACT are to the version with Writing (February 2005 and later)

ALBERTA

University of Alberta [recommended]

CALIFORNIA

- California Institute of Technology (Cal Tech) <must take Math Level 2 and either Physics, Chemistry or Biology>
- Chapman University [recommended and used for placement]
- Claremont McKenna College [optional—will be used for placement purposes only if submitted]
- Deep Springs College [recommended]
- Dominican University of California [recommended]
- Harvey Mudd College <must take Math Level 2 and one of student's choice>

Wesleyan University [ACT may be submitted in lieu of both SAT and two Subject Tests]

Yale University [ACT may be submitted in lieu of both SAT and two Subject Tests]

DELAWARE

University of Delaware [recommended, especially for candidates to Honors Program]

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

American University [recommended]

Catholic University of America [Subject Test or AP/IB exam in Language required for Arts/Sciences and Philosophy candidates; consult proposed major for other recommended SAT Subject Tests used for placement purposes only]

George Washington University [required for applicants to accelerated degree programs—BA/MD: any math and any science; BA/JD: two of student choice; Integrated Engineering and Medicine: any math and any science: required for Early Admission candidates (those completing high school in fewer than four years—not be confused with Early Decision or Early Action plans)—one math, one of student's choice; required for candidates to Honors College—any two of student's choice; recommended for all other applicants]

Georgetown University <three>

Howard University [recommended]

FLORIDA

University of Miami [Subject Tests required in Math and Science of all applicants to dual degree programs such as biomedical engineering; for all applicants to accelerated degree options such as physical therapy; and for all applicants to Honors Medicine Program]

GEORGIA

Emory University [recommended—this includes students applying to Oxford College of Emory University]
University of Georgia [recommended for placement purposes]

ILLINOIS

Northwestern University [Math Level 2; Chemistry or Physics; and one other Science Subject Test required of applicants to Integrated Science Program; Math Level 2 and Chemistry required of applicants to Honors Program in Medical Education; recommended for all other applicants]

INDIANA

Indiana University at Bloomington [recommended]
University of Notre Dame [required in French, Spanish, German and/or Italian if student will continue taking language at ND; other

DISCLAIMER: While information is current with the compilation of this list in July 2008, always double check with the individual college in question to assure that SAT Subject testing requirements are being met. Taking requisite SAT Subject Tests and submitting these to appropriate colleges and universities will not guarantee admission to those schools
